James Foy to Head GEAC

by Pat Scully

The Greenbelt East Advisory Committee (GEAC) elected its officers for 1990 at its first meeting of the year, on January 4. Elected by acclamation were: James Foy of Hunting Ridge, chair; Sheldon Goldberg of Windsor Green, vice chair; Katy Calder of Greenbrook Village, secretary; and Charlene McAdams, Greenwood Village, treasurer.

Farewell Address

Bob Zugby, departing chair, spoke about the role GEAC has played and continues to play within the city. As a coalition of homeowners associations, GEAC has provided input to its member boards and been able to focus interest on larger issues that might have gotten lost in the more day-to-day functions of the homeowners boards. The group has come a long way and established a useful identity for itself, he said. "We know who we are, and the city does too." GEAC makes people aware of issues and can take concerted action that lends strength to the individual member groups.

As a community-based group, Zugby continued, GEAC has much in common with groups in other parts of the city. He suggested that GEAC should try to establish more contact with other city groups and help to bring out people concerned with individual issues. Although he is moving from Greenbelt East into the central city, Zugby said that his Greenbelt roots are in the East.

Other Business

While some of the member boards had met and discussed the proposed legislative agenda agreed upon at the previous meeting, not all the boards had yet met or voted upon items to be pursued. Further discussion will be needed to prioritize items and to plan a course of action.

Two topics of new business were raised that will be investigated further: the possibility of communities dedicating streets to the city and the possibility of persuading Safeway to extend its program of home-delivery of groceries to Greenbelt. Developments in Laurel had dedicated their streets, it was reported, so that the city assumed responsibility for maintenance and snow plowing. This possibility could be especially attractive in light of pending state legislation which would mandate that homeowners associations maintain large capital reserves for future repairs to the physical plant. Calder promised to investigate the possibility further.

The home delivery question was raised by Goldberg, who wondered what could be done to expand Safeway's current program to Greenbelt. Apparently this is now a pilot project restricted to a Bethesda and a Northern Virginia store. Such a program would be especially beneficial to the city's elderly population and could be helpful in reducing traffic congestion around Greenway Center. No action was decided on, with direct contact with Safeway or raising the issue with city council left open as possibilities.

Next Meeting

The next meeting will be held on February 1 at 7:30 at Windsor Green.

Taxpayers Get Tips On 1989 Changes

Federal income tax packages started arriving in mailboxes on December 26. The IRS District Director urges taxpayers to allow up to two weeks to receive their booklets. If not received by then, or if a different form is needed, the number to call is 1-800-424-3676.

Although the 1989 forms closely resemble those used last year, there are a number of changes to note. Among these are:

—Social Security Numbers are now required for dependents age two or older.

—Taxpayers who claim the Child and Dependent Care Credit or who receive excludible benefits from an Employer-Provided Dependent Assistance Program must list the taxpayers identification number, name and address of the care provider on their tax return. New Form W-10 may be used to get this information from day-care providers.

According to the District Director, lines were included on this year's forms to report the supplemental Medicare premium. Because that law has been repealed, taxpayers should ignore line 54 on Form 1040 and line 23 on Form 1040A.

State Tax Offices to Be Open on King's Birthday

State tax offices will be open on Martin Luther King's Birthday, Monday, January 15, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein has announced that state tax offices will also be open on other state holidays, certain weekends and some evenings through April 16. Tax office hours are listed in the state tax packet.

Tax office personnel will complete state residents forms for free. To obtain this assistance, taxpayers should bring their completed federal return and all W-2 statements to the tax office. There is a tax office located in Suite 450, Metro-Plex-1, 8401 Corporate Drive, Landover. The phone number is 459-2710.

GHI Revamps Retirement Plan, Moves on Referendum

by Mary Moien

A new proposed retirement plan for GHI employees and a membership referendum were major topics at the December 7 meeting of the Board of Directors of Greenbelt Homes Inc.

A retirement plan for GHI employees was established a number of years ago. Because of changes in Federal regulations for such plans and limited participation by employees, a new retirement plan is being proposed. It is a 401(K) profit sharing and thrift plan. Information was provided on how the 45 full-time employees would be vested into the new program.

Nat Shinderman, GHI member and member of the Finance Committee, expressed concern that the employees covered by the current plan might lose out under the new plan. Ron Colton, General Manager, indicated that this issue was being investigated. President Wayne Williams asked management to look into the possibility of rolling over funds from the old plan into the new plan.

The motion to establish a new retirement fund passed, with employees meetings to be set up in the near future. The need for a plan administrator was also discussed. After reviewing proposals from several firms, the board decided that Sovran Bank, with lower fees, would administer the plan.

The rehabilitation of the GDC apartments on Parkway Road had been approved at meetings early in the Fall. Recently the suggestion had been made that GHI lend the money to GDC, a wholly-owned subsidiary of GHI, for these improvements. GHI would offer a favorable interest rate

City Once Again Confronts Lakewood Drainage Problem

by Virginia Beauchamp

A long-standing issue—a severe drainage problem in the Lakewood subdivision, through which water cascades in rainy weather—came before the Greenbelt City Council again at their regular meeting on January 8. The issue had first been introduced in September 1987, at which time County Executive Parris Glendening had agreed to provide funds for corrective storm drainage work. (By state law, storm drainage control is mandated to be a county function.)

Not until a year and a half later, however, in April 1989, did the county report the results of its engineering planning study. At that time, county officials also advised the city and Lakewood citizens that the county could not undertake construction until 1991. In the meantime, as Carolyn Horvath said at the council meeting, all her neighbors are suffering with wet basements. Horvath, who is vice president of the Lakewood Citizens Association, spoke on behalf of the association membership.

Should City Do Work?

City Manager James K. Giese commented that at the time of the county's report, the county suggested that the city might undertake the construction work, to be later reimbursed by the county. Unfortunately, Lakewood residents did not believe the county's study dealt adequately with the drainage problem. The city then engaged consultants to meet with the county's Water Protection Management staff and to define an expanded scope of work.

"Subsequently," according to Giese's report, "the city obtained a proposal for engineering services," revised it at the county's request and then submitted the county a request for funding. The county's reply, in a letter dated October 17, 1989, was to deny the request for reimbursement of engineering services as "too costly," at the same time noting that additional services would be required which would increase the costs still more.

$100,000 Inadequate

At that time, Giese said, he indicated that if the county would not reimburse all expenses incurred by the city, he would recommend to council that the county take over the project. Subsequently, according to a letter dated December 18 from Eugene T. Lauer, Director of Environmental Resources, the county agreed to fund the project at not more than $100,000, of which $10,000 could be used for engineering work. This figure, according to Giese, is "inadequate." The city staff believes that if the city is to participate in the program, "it will incur substantial expenses" that the county will not reimburse.

When asked how much the city staff estimates a well-engineered project would cost, Giese set the figure at "half a million dollars," if the problem of the whole neighborhood is to be dealt with.

Speaking personally, however, Giese said that he felt that such a major excavation would "create more problems than the residents realize." His own view, he said, is that a landscaping solution with drainage tiles and backyard swales might in the long run create a more satisfactory solution.

Sympathizing with Horvath's expression of frustration with having to wait so long with no solution yet in sight, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld commented: "The city has been polite too long. It is best to get the job done properly."

On a motion passed by council, "a strong letter" will be sent to Glendening and the county council enjoining them to "honor the commitment" which had been made in September 1987.

GREENBELT BLOOD DRIVE

by R. Hal Silvers

On Wednesday, January 11 between the hours of 4 and 8 p.m. the American Red Cross and the Greenbelt Lions will set up a station at St. Hugh's Grenoble Hall to receive donations of blood to replenish an almost depleted stockpile needed desperately for victims of emergencies and disasters.

Charles Mills, chairman of the Lions Health and Welfare Committee, pointed out that the blood drive held last December received a strong response from the citizens of Greenbelt. For this reason the Red Cross is again appealing for help from Greenbelt citizens to give so that others may live.

"An Appealing Facade"

To the Editor:

In recent months I was delighted to see the new paint job of the Co-op supermarket. The gray and white walls with green trim provide an appealing facade to downtown Greenbelt.

But I am disturbed by the report on the Co-op directors' meeting that appeared in the December 21 News Review.

I do hope that the Co-op Board will not support the "community mural" proposed to them, and that the building exterior will be maintained on a regular schedule.

I consider the recent painting of the Co-op to be a significant aesthetic improvement to our beautiful community.

O. C. St. Cyr

CURB APPEAL

When prospective buyers pull up in front of your home, their first impression will be crucial. If a home has peeling paint or a shaggy yard the buyers may resist going inside. If they do go in, their negative first impressions could color their feelings about the rest of the home, even when the interior does meet their criteria. This is why "Curb Appeal" is so important!

Before marketing your home, check the exterior paint and trim. If it does need painting, get it done as soon as possible, and complete any exterior carpentry work that may be needed. In the spring and summer keep your lawn mowed and trim the shrubbery. A few flowers at that time of year can also help dress up your front yard. Take into account any special needs your yard may have in the fall or winter to keep it in top "curb appeal" shape. A cared-for exterior will help your home give the impression that it has been well served before buyers even set one foot inside the front door.

For solid advice on buying or selling real estate consult me at RE/MAX Suburban Properties. Please call 441-1111, or stop by my office in The Maryland Trade Center Three, 7501 Greenway Center Drive, Suite 140 (behind the Greenway Shopping Center) in Greenbelt.

Rosebud Musical Theater Presented by Arts Center

Some of the most famous songs in music history will be performed Saturday night, January 20, at Center School. The 30 singers, dancers, and musicians of the Rosebud Musical Theater Company will present "Hi, Ho, Come to the Fairs, 1889-1939". This is the second of five concerts in the 1989-1990 Greenbelt Arts Center music series. This all-new Rosebud show will feature songs associated with several World's Fairs, starting with the 1889 Exposition of 1889 to the New York World's Fair in 1939. Many timeless tunes came from that time period, such as the "St. Louis Blues", "Dancing in the Dark", "The Good Ship Lollipop", "Oh, You Beautiful Doll", and "Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight". Composers include Scott Joplin, Victor Herbert, George M. Cohan, and John Philip Sousa.

Founder and Director, Tom Pacl, started the Rosebud troupe several years ago as a ragtime ensemble. Supported by critical acclaim and responsive audiences, Rosebud developed into a large-scale musical theater company. Rosebud shows are original productions. Members do careful research into the history behind each show; write their own script; wear costumes reflecting the time period; and choreograph their own dance numbers.

The program starts at 8. Tickets can be ordered by mail—Greenbelt Arts Center, P.O. Box 293, Greenbelt, Md. 20768, reserved by telephone 441-8770, or purchased at the door. A snow date of January 27 has been set. For further information call 441-8770.

Golden Age Club

by Mary Gardner

Club members, along with many other Greenbelt Seniors, enjoyed a delicious Christmas dinner, lovely door prizes, and delightful music as guests of American Legion Post No. 136. We send our thanks and sincere appreciation to the Legion members, and the Ladies Auxiliary for their hospitality and work in making this possible for us.

On December 20 the Club had its Christmas Party at the Youth Center. The room looked very festive, thanks to the work of committee members Nick and Vita Pergola, Dot Reamy, D. Benjamin and Ellie Rimar. We had a visit from Santa Claus, and heard a very interesting poem about Santa by our resident poet, "Uncle Joe" Rimar. Refreshments were delicious. It appeared a very good time was had by all. Thanks to the committee members, and all other volunteers assisting them.

EPHEBIATRICS

(Adolescent Medicine)

The field of adolescent medicine is a new one. Up until a generation ago there was no need for it. Most people were attended by general practitioners who took care of people from cradle to grave, and even in the early years of specialization, teenagers were largely healthy and without major problems, so they were ignored. Not so today. Teenagers in our society have adult problems: sexual activity and all its complications, pregnancy, emotional difficulties and suicide. (One disorder that has always been a teenage problem, and will always remain so, is acne.) Society's attitude towards adolescents has also changed dramatically: many adolescents look for identity — they are no longer children, but they are not yet adults. Often they are treated with disdain and feel alienated from other age groups.

Pediatricians have long decided that adolescence belongs to their specialty. After all, pediatrics deals with a Fourth Dimension: TIME — that is, change and development; and adolescents are still changing and developing. This was recognized officially by the American Academy of Pediatrics when they gave the organization a new subtitle to include Infants, Children, Adolescents, and Young Adults. Pediatricians are now trained in dealing with the special problems of teenagers, and are taught to perform every type of examination on young men and women (including "pelvics" on women).

One of the things I have discovered about teenagers is that they tend to be rather shy in front of members of the opposite sex — even parents and doctors. That is why we tend to steer adolescent men towards Dr. Aronfy, and adolescent women towards Dr. Kumar. This, of course, is not an iron-clad rule, and the choice belongs to the patient.

Managing adolescent patients is no easy matter. Instead of a doctor-patient relationship, we are dealing with a doctor-patient-parent relationship. Sometimes even the school is involved. Doctors need patience, understanding, and special knowledge. More than an ability to talk and to "cure," doctors need to take the time to listen. We must overcome a youngster's natural distrust, since we are identified with the "establishment." On the other hand, we cannot completely side with the patient, because he/she requires our guidance and advice, especially when he/she goes astray and indulges in anti-social or self-destructive behavior. We set the following ground rules: confidences will be strictly kept except under two circumstances: 1) evidence of criminal or violent behavior, or threats of such; 2) evidence of self-destructive behavior (suicide) being planned. Then "all bets are off," and parents and/or authorities will be informed.

We recommend yearly checkups for adolescents — no less than for younger patients. We prefer to talk to the parent(s) at the beginning of the visit, in case they have problems concerning the youngster. Then we like to examine the patient without the parents, and discuss with them any and all concerns they might have. Then we like to talk to both of them about matters of mutual concern, and explain our findings and recommendations. Around age 12 we recommend a repeat measles-mumps-rubella vaccine, and around age 15 we like to give our patients a diphtheria-tetanus booster. Checkups for young ladies should include a pelvic examination under the following circumstances: 1) women whose problems might involve the female organs; 2) all sexually active women; 3) all women who wish to practice birth control; 4) all women whose mothers took any form of estrogen during pregnancy; 5) all women over 18 years of age. We try to make these exams as comfortable and embarrassment-free as possible.

We hope you will not neglect your teenagers medically. If you have any questions, please call us.

Comets Defense Stops Opponents Cold

By Kevin Hackett

As the song says, "We didn't start the fire. It was always burning, since the world's been turning..." But it was a cold burn. The second half of the season saw the icy Comet defense freeze their opponents in the 1976 Boys Soccer Division III.

So, to the lyrics! "Raphael Mingo runs so fast, Jason Everhart can blast, Peter Timer solid sweeper, Jamie Despres tight at stopper. Ryan Hackett always marks 'em, fullbacks they are having fun, but if back the other way, keeper Harbin saves the day."

"They didn't start to tire, they were the Greenbelt Comets, and they were on fire."

"Jason Zeieler quick at half-back, Miguel Pereira corner shot hot, Gregg Repole blocks attack, Halper passes through the slot, Ramirez slams another ball, opposing players start to fall. Blavatt powers to the goal, Daryl's on another roll. Then the ball is down the field, game fate is soon to be sealed, Jackson passes to Edim, listen to the crowd scream!"

"Offense caught the fire, they were always burning, for team pride they're earning."

All in all, the Comets finished their last five games, 1-1-3, with a 2-1 win against Virginia Blackwatch, a 2-4 loss to Columbia Classic, and three 1-1 ties, against the Annandale Red Raiders, the Olney Cobras and the Loudoun Lancers. Standout striker Etim Edim led the scoring with four goals and one assist. Jamie Despres' two clutch goals in the final game against Virginia Blackwatch were also critical, and allowed the Comets to stay in Division III. Miguel Pereira had a goal on a penalty kick and three assists, two on corner kicks. Jay Blavatt had two assists.

With a successful season, and a first place win in the Virginia Beach Tournament, the Comets can confidently look forward to the spring season and a chance to advance to Division II.

Springhill Lake Apartments sponsors the Greenbelt Comets. Other sponsors are Three Brothers Pizza, Capital Office Park and Princeton Electric Co.

Deadlines Near for State Estimated Tax Payments

Maryland taxpayers who make quarterly estimated income tax payments have two options in filing final estimated tax payments for 1989.

Taxpayers may submit a fourth quarter declaration of estimated tax payment by Tuesday, January 16—or they can wait and file a complete 1989 Maryland tax return by Wednesday, January 31. Any balance due must be paid in full when the regular return is filed.

Generally, taxpayers should file quarterly declarations of estimated tax if they earn income which is not subject to withholding if their state and local tax is expected to be more than $100.

PGCC Offers Courses

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello Again:

We've seen some terrible weather for automobiles in the past month. When the air temperature is freezing, water will freeze no matter how little is present. Water is created when temperatures collide and air is present because there is a certain amount of moisture in the air and it condenses. Water is heavier than oil or gasoline and will go to the lowest point of the collection area. If cold enough it will freeze and block things up or even break components. We don't want this to happen so try to do the following and you shouldn't have any problem:

- 1) Keep your fuel tank full so little air is in the tank.
- 2) Fully warm engine before operating car.
- 3) Keep crankcase ventilation system (PCV) in good condition.
- 4) Use windshield washer antifreeze full strength.
- 5) Use an evaporative type of dry gas additive for additional protection.

'Til next time

Released by the Greenbelt

On December 29, a resident in the 7600 block of Mandan Road reported that someone tried to enter her apartment by prying open the door while she was sleeping. The would-be intruder fled without getting in.

Dr. Frank Pisciotto, Gastroenterologist

Listening To Your Body's Language

If you think the way computers work is complicated, think for a minute about your own body. Everything we do—from taking a step to reading a page to processing food—requires enormous coordination of systems within. When something is going wrong, the body often sends out signals to warn us.

These signals are commonly known as symptoms, and are the body's way of telling us that something needs attention.

Dr. Frank Pisciotto, an area gastroenterologist, states, "Two common signs of a digestive system in trouble are diarrhea and constipation. Others include painful swallowing, heartburn, nausea, cramping, unexplained weight loss, discoloration of tissue or the presence of blood in the stool."

Dr. Pisciotto says that for some 20 million Americans, minor digestive upsets are a daily problem. According to the National Institutes of Health figures, another 20 million are chronically ill with serious gastrointestinal disorders.

He states, "Almost everyone suffers from occasional bouts of heartburn. Changing eating habits may help dramatically, however, if within a week's time self-care measures don't help, it's time to seek medical advice. The acids caused by heartburn can actually erode the esophagus and cause painful ulcers. Your doctor can likely prescribe something to prevent it."

Common sense, he says, is the key. Many people wait too long for the symptoms to disappear on their own. By the time they seek medical advice, the problem has advanced to a more complicated stage.

Most digestive diseases are highly treatable in their early stages, includes malignancies. Early tumors can usually be effectively removed with little or no discomfort by a simple in-office procedure called endoscopy. Dr. Pisciotto has offices that include endoscopy facilities, as well as on-site lab, and X-ray, so there is no undue disruption of the patient's daily routine. Should there be a need, he has hospital privileges at many of the areas finest facilities.

He says, "We often see patients who have suffered for weeks or months before they come in, thinking that the problem would go away. Our staff understands the importance of early treatment, so when someone calls, we accommodate them right away. A thorough evaluation and program of treatment, if needed, begins immediately."

Dr. Pisciotto, who is a graduate of the Universities of Maryland and Texas Medical School, trained at institutes including Hahnemann Medical Center and Hospital in Philadelphia; M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston; St Mary's Hospital at the University of Rochester in New York and Washington Hospital Center in Washington, D.C. He prescribes preventive measures as ways in which to avoid having trouble.

"Eat slowly," he advises, "and as your mother always told you, chew your food well. Have plenty of high-fiber food in your diet, drink alcohol only in moderation, don't smoke cigarettes, and be aware of any changes in your body's normal patterns. If you have doubts concerning the seriousness of a condition, see a doctor. Ignoring symptoms for long periods of time can wind up being very costly in terms of your health. When your body talks, listen."
